September 26, 2011, the New Jersey Supreme Court Committee on Women in the Courts, in conjunction with Career Services of Seton Hall University Law School, presented a program to law students and young lawyers entitled: "Communication Boot Camp". Heather was the moderator of the panel discussion, with a distinguished panel. The panel was comprised of the Honorable Darrell Fineman, J.S.C., Catherine Wells, Esq., Sapana Shah, Esq., and Stephanie Palo, Esq. Heather believed that those in attendance would benefit from the perspective and insights of an experienced managing partner, and certified public accountant, and included Alan Sobel of Sobel & Co. as a panelist.

On November 10, 2011, Heather moderated another panel discussion, this one hosted by the Rutgers Women's Forum at Rutgers University Law School in Newark, Heather's alma mater. Novartis Pharmaceuticals Corporation; Abigail Bomba, Esq., Corporate Partner, Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver & Jacobson, LLP; Veronica Montagna, Esq., Associate, McCarter & English; and Cindi Smith, Esq., Managing Corporate Counsel, Alcatel-Lucent. That event was hosted at the law school the evening of Thursday, November 10, 2011.

Bright and early the following morning, Heather was on her way to Bethlehem, PA. She shared with those students in the Introduction to Real Estate class offered through the Goodman School for Real Estate Studies at Lehigh University, her knowledge and insights with respect to zoning, condemnation and environmental law. After her two lectures, Heather participated in a luncheon hosted by the University in the impressive faculty dining room overlooking the campus so as to continue the dialogue with the Lehigh undergraduates.
